

Earth Day Essay

By: Beckett [REDACTED]

Walking in the woods and seeing wildlife everywhere is one of my favorite activities to do in Vermont. I also love camping and listening to every one of the birds chirping. I love when I can walk into my backyard and am already in the woods. I am so glad we have these woods where we can do anything. Hiking with my parents, brother, and dogs is also one of my favorite things to do.

There are some concerns I have for Vermont. One of my concerns is there is too much logging. All the logging they are doing is ruining all the beautiful forests and the animal's habitats. Another thing I am concerned about is the windmill farms. They produce power but, they're harming various animals and use up a lot of their habitat.

There are some hopes I have for Vermont too. One of my hopes is that we should have more bike trails connecting to towns. That would mean fewer Co2 emissions by using fewer cars and more bikes to travel around. I also hope that we will have more wind and solar energy on a smaller scale and less wind and solar energy on a large scale. If we use up all the beautiful land for solar panels and windmills we won't be able to use it for hiking, biking, skiing, camping, and all the wonderful things you can do in the open wilderness.

I love Vermont and I want it to be safe for people, plants, and animals for a long time.
