The Environment in Vermont Seasons!

I love the environment in Vermont. Here's why: I love when it becomes fall because all the leaves are very pretty, especially when you just look at the mountains and all you see is the red, orange and yellow leaves. It is so pretty that even people from nearby states come to see it. But there are a lot of people that litter and I am worried that all this pollution is going to hurt the trees and I don't want that. Also all that pollution is causing global warming and that is not good, it can cause flooding because the ice bridges are melting. But not a lot of people care that they litter, they don't notice that they are hurting the earth. That is why we have earth day and green up day! Those days are the best days, they help the earth in one of the best ways. People all over the world are picking up litter around their houses or by the road. Alright back to the seasons. The winters are harsh but it makes it fun for the kids. All the snow we get makes good snow banks to play on. But it is really cold, sometimes below zero which is really cold. But if you wear your winter gear you don't feel a thing. Just make sure you're wearing: your hat, gloves, coat, snow pants and maybe a scarf to stay warm. Alright let's go to spring. Spring is muddy at first, that's why we call it the mud season. But when the mud is gone after a while you see the beautiful green grass after the snow melts. That's like the best part of spring to me because the snow gets boring after a while and it is so great to see grass again. But the mud is the worst part for parents because the kids trek all the mud into the house and it can make them maaad. But the kids don't really mind getting dirty like I do, but some kids don't like getting dirty and that's okay because people like different things and that's all right. Back to spring. I love it when the snow melts because I usually don't want the snow anymore. So let's get to summer. The sun is out most of the day unless it rains or it's cloudy. I love summer, I pretty much like all of the seasons. Summer can get really hot but not for a long time one day and then like fifteen days after that it will be almost the same temperature. The temperature on the hottest days is in the nineties at least. I have had some days where it is in the hundreds but I haven't lived here long. I lived here all my life but I am only ten. But I love all the green grass and the green leaves on the trees. So come on over to Vermont and see it for yourself.
