

Earth Day

Earth day is when people celebrate our earth and its natural resources, so people go out and pick up litter. I think it's a really good cause and very good for our climate because I don't see much trash, and my personal views are that it's nice to go outside for a day and pick up our earth because it maintains a good, healthy environment.

And I think that earth day will help our environment stay healthy in the future. Also a few concerns I have for the future of Vermont if we stopped doing earth day could be loss of snow and bad fall foliage. And I think that the fall foliage is beautiful and in Vermont skiing is a very big sport here, so if we lost the snow it would be very saddening and many people would be upset.

That is why earth day is a very important thing to do, and I think everyone should take part in it and pick up trash, because we've already started to lose snow, and many people couldn't go out and do fun things in the snow, for example sledding, skiing, etc. Also even if Vermont alone can't do it all, we can at least help a little bit.

So in conclusion I think that Earth day is very good for the climate and we should keep doing it to save vermont and let people enjoy the snow and beautiful fall foliage.
