

Earth Day

"Hey!" "Hi how are you doing!" is what you hear when you walk down the street filled with happy and friendly people in Vermont. One of my favorite places to go is Silver Lake. My favorite part is going with my friends, we mess around on the bouy and jump off the dock.

It concerns me that someday I won't be able to walk through the forests of Vermont and see beautiful trees. People are cutting down over 1,500 acres of trees just in Vermont. People are ruining the beautiful fields and putting up windmills. Sure, windmills provide renewable energy, but would you really give up the beautiful Vermont views just so you can have a little bit of wifi?

My hopes for Vermonts future is more control on the amount of logging. Vermont is being destroyed by the amount of trees being cut down. Animals are losing their habitats because humans are cutting down an unnecessary amount of their ecosystem. I wish people would be more careful about the amount of trees they cut down.

As you can see, there are a lot of good things about Vermont and some things we need to fix. Let's all work together to keep this state beautiful for the people of Vermont.
