

Trash + Nature

People, can you believe our environment right now? You have only picked up 1 or 2 pieces of trash in your life. You can go to a different state and say "Oh there is a lot of trash on our hike" then you come to Vermont and see 1 or 2 pieces of trash, but you will pick it up because there was a lot more trash in the other state. Soon you don't care about the environment because you know people are going to pick it up for you but they might not, so you should pick trash up too.

What I like about Vermont is there is not a lot of trash. People will learn to pick it up and love Vermont. Earth Day and Green Up Day are my favorite days of all. I like going around town to different parts of Vermont learning about them and then picking them up.

I was once you. I used to live in Connecticut and we lived in an apartment. Every day our little field in the road had trash. I was 4-5 and I would pick it up. I grabbed gloves by myself and picked it up. You know you would look at it and hope some dude would pick it up for you. Sometimes people hate picking it up. They would say "eww". Close your eyes and pick it up yourself and that's why you would have a trash bag.

Trash + nature is not ok. Nature is supposed to be beautiful for boys and girls. You should be taking care of our environment. Vermont should look like beauty and mountains are green, the grass is green, trees are green. That's all you're supposed to see is green!! No oil companies, no trash in water or on land. Trees give to you so you can live in good, fresh air. Give something to trees like picking the trash up.
