EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

This report covers charitable fundraising campaigns begun in Vermont by paid fundraisers during the three-year period July 1, 2006, through June 30, 2009, with a focus on campaigns for which a financial report was filed by a fundraiser with the Vermont Attorney General, as required by state law. The report does not address contributions to charities that did not use a paid fundraiser, because those campaigns are not reported to the Attorney General.

To summarize the highlights of the report:

- A total of 40 paid fundraisers initiated 676 campaigns in Vermont on behalf of 282 charities during the period covered by this report. In all, 497 financial reports were filed for these campaigns on behalf of 241 charities.
- Of the 676 campaigns, 80 were conducted for 38 in-state charities (resulting in 69 financial reports from 35 charities), and 596 were conducted for 244 out-of-state charities (resulting in 428 financial reports from 206 charities).
- According to the financial reports filed, Vermonters contributed over $8.4 million in response to these campaigns—about $6.1 million in campaigns for in-state charities, and over $2.4 million in campaigns for out-of-state charities.
- Of the total contributions made to all charities using paid fundraisers, over $5.7 million, or 67.8%, went to the paid fundraisers for commissions or expenses, and over $2.6 million, or 32.2%, went to the charities. (This is called “the split.”)
- Over one-quarter of the campaigns covered by the report involved payment to the fundraiser of between 61% and 80% of gross contributions; and in another one-sixth of the campaigns, the fundraiser received more than 80% of the contributions.

- The average split differed by the various attributes of the campaign. Fundraisers received a higher percentage of gross contributions when they (1) worked for in-state charities (73.4% v. 53.3% for out-of-state charities); (2) contacted prospective donors by telephone; (3) sold goods or services as part of the campaign; or (4) were compensated based on a percentage of contributions made.
- Campaigns involving the sale of concert tickets or other goods or services allocated a total of 77.0% of gross contributions to the fundraisers.
- Most donors are probably not aware of how much of the money they donate in response to paid fundraiser-conducted appeals goes to the fundraiser. On the other hand, many Vermonters are taking advantage of the availability of data on the “splits” that is posted on the Attorney General’s website. It is recommended that other prospective donors, and charities, do the same.

I. BACKGROUND

A. Regulating Paid Fundraisers

The focus of this report is the subset of fundraising campaigns in which the charity hires an outside person or company—a paid fundraiser—to solicit the contributions. When that occurs, prospective donors may want to know how much of their contributions will never reach the charity at all, but will be retained by the fundraiser as a commission or to offset fundraising expenses. Given the fact that in Vermont, on average, almost 68 cents of every donated dollar goes to the fundraiser—and that in many campaigns, the figure is even higher—Vermonters need to be informed as to where their charitable dollars are going.

That is why, in 1990, Vermont, like most states<sup>1</sup>, enacted a Charitable Solicitations Act (“the Act”), requiring paid fundraisers to furnish pre- and post-campaign information to the Attorney General’s Office, to post a bond, and to adhere to certain standards of conduct designed to ensure non-deceptive fundraising.

An explanation of terminology would be helpful here. A “paid fundraiser” is defined in the Act as “a person who, for financial consideration, solicits contributions from persons in this state, either directly or through employees, agents, or those with whom the paid fundraiser is in privity.”<sup>2</sup> In short, a paid fundraiser is someone who is paid to solicit contributions for a charity. In this context, a “solicitation” is “a direct or indirect request for a contribution,” including an offer or attempt to sell something.<sup>3</sup> The definition of charity—actually, the statutory term is “charitable purpose”—is quite broad, encompassing “any benevolent, educational, philanthropic, humane, patriotic, social welfare, advocacy, public health, environmental conservation or civic objective or any objective of law enforcement officers, fire fighters or other persons who protect the public safety.”<sup>4</sup>

The Charitable Solicitations Act was passed in response to concerns that some fundraisers were receiving the lion’s share of the funds they raised without full transparency for the charities that hired them, and without the donors having any way of knowing where their money was going. In brief, the Act requires fundraisers who solicit in Vermont to:

- Provide certain contractual disclosures to the charities that hire them<sup>5</sup>, and refrain from restricting the charity’s use of the list of donors to the campaign.<sup>6</sup>
- File a notice with the Attorney General’s Office before starting their fundraising in Vermont, with detailed information on the campaign.<sup>7</sup>

- Deposit all contributions in a bank account in the charity’s name from which withdrawals can be made only with the express consent of the charity.<sup>8</sup>
- Post a $20,000 bond.<sup>9</sup>
- Disclose to prospective donors that they are paid fundraisers and that a donor can find out the percentage of donations that will go to the fundraiser on the Attorney General’s website.<sup>10</sup>
- Refrain from engaging in deceptive fundraising.<sup>11</sup>
- At the end of the campaign, provide a closing statement to the charity<sup>12</sup> and a financial report to the State<sup>13</sup> with an itemization of how the gross receipts of the fundraising campaign were distributed and the respective percentages of gross receipts retained by the fundraiser and the charity.<sup>14</sup>
- Upon request, provide all available substantiation of any factual claims made by the fundraiser in the course of a fundraising campaign, and copies of all telephone scripts, communications, and recordings.<sup>15</sup>

One of the clear benefits to this system of regulation is that it makes publicly available information on each charitable campaign in Vermont that is conducted by a paid fundraiser, including the identity of the fundraiser and, significantly, the respective percentages of the contributed dollars that will go to the fundraiser and to the charity. This data is available on the Attorney General’s website at www.atg.state.vt.us through “Charities/Paid Fundraisers.”

B. Calculating “the Split”

Two earlier analyses of the “splits”—the allocation of contributions between charities and their paid fundraisers—have shown that on average, a much higher portion of donated dollars goes to the paid fundraisers than to the charities. First, in June 1993, the Attorney

General's Office issued a report summarizing the information provided by paid fundraisers for the first 30 months that the Charitable Solicitations Act was in effect (July 1, 1990, through December 31, 1992). Of the approximately $788,000 contributed by Vermonters to charities using paid fundraisers during that period, $572,386, or 72.6% of total contributions, went to the fundraisers.<sup>16</sup> Then, in December 1998, the Attorney General's Office issued a second report, entitled WHERE HAVE ALL THE DOLLARS GONE?, for the period 1993 through 1997. Of the roughly $4.6 million contributed in similar campaigns during those five years, over $3.2 million, or 70.6%, went to the fundraisers.<sup>17</sup>

No similar analysis has been undertaken since the end of 1998. A major reason for the time gap was the labor-intensive nature of the work required to aggregate and sort the underlying data. That hurdle has now largely been removed, because effective July 1, 2006, all of the documents that paid fundraisers have been required to file with the Attorney General's Office—including initial notices of solicitation and campaign financial reports—have been filed electronically, via a dedicated portion of the Office's website.

Based on this electronically-filed data, the Attorney General's Office has now analyzed paid fundraiser-conducted charitable campaigns for the three-year period July 1, 2006, through June 30, 2009.

II. PAID FUNDRAISER ACTIVITY IN VERMONT

A. Extent of Activity

Between July 1, 2006, and June 30, 2009, 676 fundraising campaigns were begun in the State of Vermont by 40 paid fundraisers acting on behalf of a total of 282 charities.<sup>18</sup> The sponsoring charities and their fundraisers are listed in Appendices 1 and 2.

For these campaigns, 497 end-of-campaign financial reports have been filed and analyzed here. Of the remaining 179 campaigns, 168 were still in process, 4 had ended but the financial reports were not yet filed, and 7 involved a fundraiser that went out of business without filing a report.<sup>19</sup> The total of contributions reflected on the received reports was $8,424,176,<sup>20</sup> or an average of $16,950 per campaign. However, there were significant differences in the amounts contributed to various campaigns, as noted in the following discussion of campaigns for in-state and out-of-state charities.

1. In-State Charities. Paid fundraisers raised over $6 million for 35 charities based in Vermont. In the 69 campaigns for which a financial report was filed, the total amount raised was $6,068,986, for an average campaign yield of $87,956. Some of these campaigns raised substantial amounts of money; others did not. For instance, Vermonters contributed over $150,000 to each of 11 campaigns listed below, for a total of almost $4.5 million; thus, 73.6% of all contributions to in-state charities was raised in 12.8% of the campaigns. At the other end of the scale, contributions were less than $10,000 in 13 campaigns, 4 of which raised no funds at all, for a total of $55,205, or 0.9% of all contributions to in-state charities.

The “concentration” of contributions extends further. The top 11 fundraising campaigns for in-state charities were conducted on behalf of 4 charities—Professional Fire Fighters of Vermont, Special Olympics of Vermont, Vermont Troopers Foundation, and Vermont Police Association—with the first of these organizations grossing the 5 highest amounts. The following is a list of these 11 campaigns.

Charity	Fundraiser	Year	Donations	Total

2. Out-of-State Charities. Paid fundraisers raised nearly $2.4 million for 206 charities based outside of Vermont. In the 428 campaigns for which a financial report was filed, the total amount raised was $2,355,190, for an average campaign yield of $5,503. Again, some of these campaigns raised substantial amounts of money, and some did not. For instance, as noted below, Vermonters contributed over $150,000 to each of two campaigns—Cancer Center for Detection and Prevention and The U.S. Charitable Gift Trust—for a total of over $510,000, or 21.6% of all contributions to out-of-state charities. By contrast, contributions were below $10,000 in 373 campaigns, 82 of which raised no funds at all, for a total of $548,572, or 23.3% of all contributions to out-of-state charities.

Charity	Fundraiser	Year	Donations

B. Campaign Purposes, Methods, Sale of Goods or Services, and Compensation Type

Not all campaigns were conducted for the same purpose, by the same method of contact with contributors, with a sale of goods or services (or not), or using the same type of compensation for the fundraiser. This section discusses each of these factors, based on the 69 and 428 financial reports filed for campaigns for in-state and out-of-state charities, respectively.

1. Purpose. One of the purposes of almost half of the campaigns was to acquire new donors (“acquisition”) or re-contact prior donors (“renewal”). Not surprisingly, the largest number of campaigns were undertaken in whole or in part to raise funds. Figure 1 breaks down these purposes for campaigns for in-state charities and campaigns for out-of-state charities.

2. Methods of contact. The vast majority of campaigns were conducted in part or in whole by telephone. Other campaigns were conducted by mail, in-person, on the Internet, or by some “other” method (mostly follow-up confirmations), or some combination of methods. Figure 2 breaks down these methods for campaigns for in-state charities and campaigns for out-of-state charities.

3. Sale of goods or services. All of the campaigns that involved the sale of goods or services were for Vermont charities. Of the 497 campaigns for which financial reports were filed, 50 involved the sale of goods or services, all of them in-state, and most of them in the form of business advertising or tickets to a show. Figure 3 breaks down these methods for campaigns for in-state charities.

4. Types of compensation to the fundraiser. Vermont charities and national charities favor different contractual arrangements for compensating their paid fundraisers. These arrangements include a percentage of gross contributions, a fixed amount per solicitation, reimbursement of expenses, “other” (such as a percentage of net profits, or payment by the hour), or some combination of these approaches. In campaigns for in-state charities, the most common method of compensation was a percentage of gross contributions, while in campaigns for out-of-state charities, the most common method was a fixed amount per solicitation. Figure 4 breaks down these types of compensation for campaigns for in-state charities and campaigns for out-of-state charities.

C. Allocation of Contributions Between Fundraisers and Charities (“The Split”)

One of the most significant categories of information to be gleaned from fundraisers’ filings concerns the question of where the contributions go: what percentage is paid to the fundraiser, and what percentage to the charity? This breakdown is required by law to be included in the fundraiser’s financial report, and it is set out in the next sections of this report in relation to several factors: (1) location of the charity (all, in-state, and out-of-state); (2) purpose of the campaign; (3) fundraising method; (4) sale of goods or services (or not); and (5) compensation types.

1. Splits by location of charity.

Of the nearly $8.5 million that Vermonters contributed to all charities in campaigns covered by this report, over $5.7 million, or 67.8%, went to the paid fundraisers; and approximately $2.7 million, or 32.2%, went to the charities.<sup>22</sup> In campaigns for Vermont charities, the paid fundraisers received an even higher percentage (73.4%). In one in six campaigns, paid fundraisers kept more than 80% of the money raised.

The total amount of contributions by Vermonters in campaigns conducted by paid fundraisers was $8,424,176, of which $5,709,423 went to the paid fundraisers, and $2,714,753 to the charities. Lists of the gross donations, net to charity, and percentages of contributions received by all charities and their fundraisers are set out in Appendices 3 and 4. Figure 5 shows the split for all campaigns.

Of the $6,068,986 that Vermonters contributed to in-state charities using paid fundraisers, $4,455,233, or 73.4% went to the fundraisers, and $1,613,762, or 26.6%, went to the charities. And of the $2,355,190 that Vermonters contributed to out-of-state charities using paid fundraisers, $1,254,199, or 53.3%, went to the fundraisers, and $1,100,991, or 46.7%, went to the charities. Figure 6 shows the split for in-state and out-of-state charities.

Out-of-State Charities

It is also worth considering the splits for the four (in-state) charitable organizations that generated the highest level of contributions. In these campaigns, the percentage of gross receipts that went to the paid fundraiser ranged widely, from 51.5% to 79.1%, as follows:

Charity	Fundraiser	Year	Donations	% to Fundraiser
Professional Fire Fighters of VT	FireCo, LLC	2007	$732,086	79.1
Professional Fire Fighters of VT	FireCo, LLC	2008	655,855	78.5
Professional Fire Fighters of VT	FireCo, LLC	2008	644,400	78.9
Professional Fire Fighters of VT	FireCo, LLC	2007	632,913	78.8
Professional Fire Fighters of VT	FireCo, LLC	2009	557,075	78.9
Special Olympics VT	The Heritage Company	2009	247,172	52.6
Special Olympics VT	The Heritage Company	2008	242,668	51.5
VT Troopers Foundation	Police Publications, Inc.	2007	221,505	73.5
VT Troopers Foundation	Police Publications, Inc.	2008	198,267	73.3
VT Police Association	Police Publications, Inc.	2007	184,430	74.0
VT Police Association	Police Publications, Inc.	2008	153,117	74.0

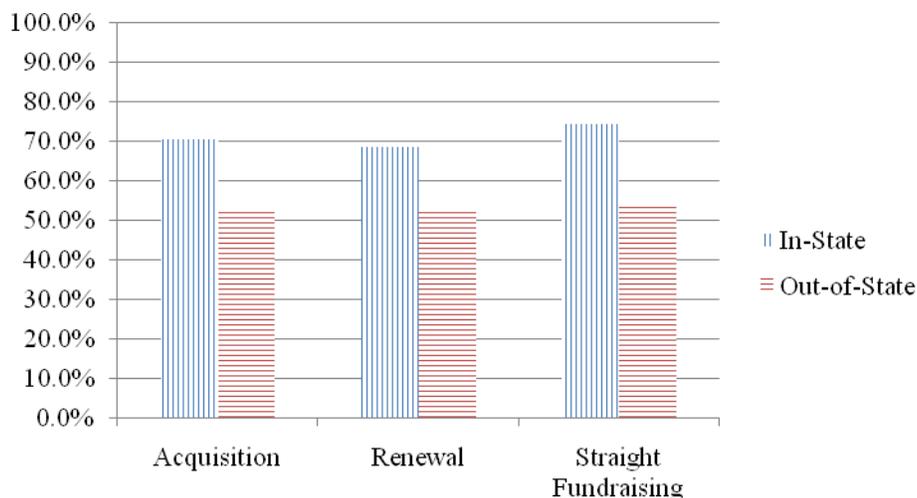

Another way of analyzing the data is to count the campaigns in which specific percentages of gross contributions went to the fundraiser. Figure 7 shows the number of campaigns in which the fundraiser received compensation within these ranges of percentages: 20% or less, 21%-40%, 41%-60%, 61%-80%, and over 80%. Combining all campaigns, over one-quarter (26.6%) of the campaigns directed between 61% and 80% of contributions to the fundraiser; another one-sixth (17.1%) directed over 80% to the fundraiser.

2. Splits by purpose of campaign. The purpose of a campaign using a paid fundraiser did not appreciably affect the splits of contributions between fundraisers and charities. Fundraisers who ran “acquisition” campaigns received 66.2% of the roughly $1.8 million raised in those campaigns (70.7% for in-state charities and 52.7% for out-of-state); in “renewal” campaigns, the figure was 63.8% of $2 million raised (68.6% in-state and 52.5% out-of-state); and in straight fundraising campaigns, the figure was 68.5% of the $7.3 million raised (74.4% in-state and 54.3% out-of-state). Figure 8 shows the splits for in-state and out-of-state charities.

3. Splits by method of contact. Fundraisers received the lowest share of gross contributions in campaigns for out-of-state charities using through-the-mail contacts (in whole or in part), and the greatest share in in-state mail campaigns. Fundraisers’ share of the $1.1 million raised in 84 campaigns with a mail component totaled 44.4%; the 5 campaigns for in-state charities and 79 campaigns for out-of-state charities directed 76.2% and 34.4% to the fundraisers, respectively. Fundraisers’ share of the $8.4 million raised in all 494 telephonic campaigns totaled 67.8%; the 69 telephonic campaigns for in-state charities and 425 campaigns for out-of-state charities directed 73.4% and 53.3% to the fundraisers, respectively.

4. Splits by sale of goods or services. Paid fundraisers received the greatest share of donations in good-and-services campaigns. As noted above, some fundraising campaigns covered by this report involved the sale of goods or services like tickets to an entertainment event or business advertising. For all 50 of such campaigns (grossing over $5 million)—all of them for in-state charities—fundraisers received a total of 77.0%. This compares with 56.4% and 53.3%, respectively, for the $3.4 million in campaigns for in-state and out-of-state charities where there was no such sale. Thus, the fundraisers’ aggregate share of contributions was substantially higher in goods-and-services campaigns than otherwise. This may be explained, at least in part, by the fact that the fundraisers typically have to cover the cost of the goods or services, including expenses related to a concert or similar event. Figure 10 illustrates this split.

5. Splits by type of compensation to the fundraiser. Comparing standard contract terms, paid fundraisers received the greatest compensation when they were paid a percentage of all contributions. The different types of compensation afforded paid fundraisers in the campaigns discussed in this report involved noticeable differences in the allocations of contributions between fundraisers and charities. Fundraisers who received a percentage of contributions garnered the highest percentage of contributions (besides “other”): 69.6% of the roughly $3 million contributed to such campaigns (73.4% for in-state charities and 60.0% for out-of-state). Those who received a specified amount for each solicitation received 51.6% of the $0.7 million contributed to those campaigns (46.0% in-state and 53.0% out-of-state). Fundraisers whose expenses were reimbursed received 44.2% of the $0.8 million raised in those campaigns (39.6% in-state and 44.8% out-of-state). And for other forms of compensation (such as percentage of net contributions or hourly payment), totaling $4.1 million, or 72.9%, the respective percentages to fundraisers were 74.4% for in-state charities and 53.7% for out-of-state. Figure 11 shows the splits for in-state and out-of-state charities by type of compensation.

6. Campaigns with the highest percentages of contributions to fundraisers. The top ten campaigns with contributions above $10,000, in terms of highest percentage to the fundraiser, were as follows:

III. LAW ENFORCEMENT ACTIONS

Since the issuance of WHERE HAVE ALL THE DOLLARS GONE in 1998, the Vermont Attorney General's Office has taken several legal actions to enforce the state's Charitable Solicitations Act.

- In January of 2001, a settlement was reached in the 1998 lawsuit filed against paid fundraiser Civic Development Group, L.L.C. ("CDG"), and three of the charities on whose behalf CDG conducted campaigns in Vermont—Children's Charity Fund, Inc., Cancer Fund of America, Inc., and Paralyzed Veterans of America, Inc.—New England Chapter. The suit was filed in response to evidence that CDG and the charities had misled prospective donors about how their donations would be used. The settlement required the payment of $386,000, of which $212,000 was used to establish funds to benefit disabled children, paralyzed veterans, and Vermonters with cancer.<sup>23</sup>

- In 2002, the Attorney General's Office sued, and settled with paid fundraiser East Coast Marketing Group, Inc., for failure to file financial reports and other violations of the Charitable Solicitations Act, and for deceptively implying that its solicitors were public safety officers; the company paid $100,000—$86,000 of it for drug and personal safety programs for teenagers and pre-teens. In 2008, East Coast paid the State an additional $15,000 for again failing to file required financial reports.<sup>24</sup>

- Recovery of $10,000 and $20,000 bonds in two cases, respectively, based on the failure of the paid fundraisers—Kevin Hague d/b/a KMH Marketing, and Reese Teleservices, Inc.—to file end-of-campaign financial reports as required by law.<sup>25</sup>

IV. DISCUSSION

A. Allocation of Contributions

The most significant information to emerge from paid fundraisers' filings with the State of Vermont concerns the distribution of contributions between fundraisers and their sponsoring charities. As noted above, of the $8.4 million in charitable contributions reported by paid fundraisers who began campaigns in Vermont during the period July 1, 2006, through June 30, 2009, over $5.7 million, or 67.8% of the total, went to the paid fundraiser.

The percentage to the fundraiser varied by location of charity: 73.4% for in-state charities, 53.3% for out-of-state charities. The difference in these percentages may have been due largely to the fact that over $5 million of the $6 million in contributions to in-state charities involved the sale of goods or services, which themselves had a very high overall split to the paid fundraiser: 77.0%. This outcome is not surprising, given that there are expenses associated with publishing business advertisements or putting on a show, although whether donors understand this dynamic is unclear.<sup>26</sup> Omitting event and sale-of-advertising campaigns, the overall percentage of gross contributions that went to fundraisers for in-state charities was 54.9%.

Moreover, in 43.7% of the campaigns, more than 60% of contributions went to the fundraiser (less than 40% to the charity); and in 17.1% of the campaigns, more than 80% of the contributions went to the fundraiser (less than 20% to the charity). Thus, in 85 campaigns, more than 80 cents out of every dollar donated went not to the charity in whose name the contribution was solicited, but to the solicitor.

By far the highest per-campaign yields—an average of $383,043 over 13 campaigns—were achieved by the Cancer Center for Detection and Prevention, Professional Fire Fighters of Vermont, Special Olympics Vermont, Vermont Police Association, Vermont Troopers Foundation, and The U.S. Charitable Gift Trust, which together generated $4,979,553, or 59.1%, of all charitable contributions covered by this report.

In terms of the relationship between the percentage of contributions paid to fundraisers and the various attributes of the campaigns, the highest percentages to the fundraisers occurred in campaigns that (1) involved contact with prospective donors by telephone, (2) raised money by selling goods or services, and/or (3) compensated fundraisers based on a percentage of contributions made. The purpose of the campaign—acquisition, renewal or otherwise—did not make much difference in the split. This information should be of value to charities that are interested in maximizing their share of the contributions in fundraiser-conducted campaigns.

B. Informing the Public of the Fundraiser-Charity “Split”

Most people who respond to paid fundraisers’ solicitations probably do not know how much of each dollar they contribute in response to a paid fundraiser solicitation goes to the fundraiser and how much to the charity. However, given the generally high percentage to fundraisers detailed in this report, information on “the split” should be of great importance to prospective donors. The significance of this data is not limited to Vermont, as Congressional review of high fundraising expenses last year demonstrates.<sup>27</sup>

In recognition of the importance to the public of information on the split, the Vermont Attorney General’s Office maintains a system for providing campaign-specific data to the public on the allocation of contributions between charities and their paid fundraisers. Specifically, the minimum percentage of contributions contractually guaranteed to the charity

(or, if the post-campaign financial report has been filed, then the actual split between fundraiser and charity) is posted on the Attorney General’s website, organized both by charity and by fundraiser. (To access this information, go to the Attorney General’s homepage at www.atg.state.vt.us, click on “Charities/Paid Fundraisers” and then on “Data from Paid Fundraisers”). This part of the Attorney General’s website has been quite active, averaging around ten “hits” a day in 2009.<sup>28</sup>

C. Charitable Giving in Vermont Generally

Information on the split is only the starting point in evaluating what happens to the dollars contributed to a charity. It is also important for Vermonters to ask how the monies that a charity actually receives are used. This is particularly relevant to donor decision-making given the fact that in relation to funds raised by paid fundraisers, a much larger amount of money is contributed to charities without the involvement of any paid fundraiser—over $259 million from Vermonters in 2007 alone.<sup>29</sup> (Since charities that do not use a paid fundraiser are not required to report to the State, it is not known whether they have a lower cost of fundraising, although at least one Pennsylvania study has found that they do.<sup>30</sup>)

For information on how charities use their contributions, Vermonters can look to organizations that gather that type of information, rate charities according to particular standards, and make their ratings available on the Internet, including the Better Business Bureau (BBB)<sup>31</sup> and Charity Navigator.<sup>32</sup> For example, under the Better Business Bureau’s Wise Giving Alliance Standards for Charity Accountability, a charity should spend no more than 35% of related contributions on fundraising.<sup>33</sup> The American Institute of Philanthropy uses a similar standard.<sup>34</sup> These percentages are, if anything, higher than what some studies have shown donors are likely to expect.<sup>35</sup>

Even so, there is a caveat: a charity's fundraising expenses can be downplayed by including a (sometimes minimal) educational message in the fundraising materials and then, for accounting purposes, denominating a portion of those expenses as part of the charity's program expenses.<sup>36</sup>

IV. CONCLUSION

The data in this report show that a Vermonter can maximize the dollars that will go to a charity (1) if the donation is made directly to a charity, and not through a campaign run by a paid fundraiser, and (2) if the campaign is not for goods or services such as advertising or tickets to an event.

The best approach to charitable giving, from the prospective donor's point of view, is informed giving. Vermonters can and should seek out information about any charity and its paid fundraiser (if it has one) before making a donation, for example by checking the charity's website or requesting a brochure or other document explaining the mission of the charity and how contributions are used, including the percentage devoted to fundraising. The breakdown of contributions between fundraisers and charities can also be accessed on the Attorney General's website. In addition, information on what charities do with the money they do receive is available from various organizations on the Internet. Finally, if there is any question about how a contribution may be used, Vermonters may want to focus their generosity on local or national charities with which they are personally familiar.

For charities seeking to maximize their share of fundraiser-conducted campaigns, this report suggests that attention should be paid to the terms of their contracts with the fundraisers. In particular, charities should "comparison-shop" for the best deal available from fundraisers, taking into account the lower percentages to fundraisers in campaigns that (1) use mailings, (2) do not involve the sale of goods or services, and (3) do not compensate the fundraiser based on a percentage of contributions made.

Endnotes

<sup>1</sup> As of January 1, 2009, 47 states and the District of Columbia required paid fundraisers to make disclosures to prospective donors, to register, and/or to comply with other state regulatory requirements. Giving USA Update (Annual Survey of State Laws Regulating Charitable Solicitations) (Issue 1, 2009).

- h. a copy of the contract between the fundraiser and the charity.

9 V.S.A. §§ 2473(a)(1)-(8). Subsection (a)(9) permits the Attorney General to promulgate a regulation requiring the filing of additional information, which he has done in Consumer Fraud Rule (CF) 119. The most significant additional information required by CF 119 is:

- a. the fax number and email address of the paid fundraiser, the name and title of the paid fundraiser's primary contact person, and contact information on the paid fundraiser's attorney, if any;
- b. a summary of the terms of the contract with the charity;

<sup>18</sup> For the purposes of this report, a fundraising campaign is a campaign which was conducted for one year or less. A campaign which was scheduled to be conducted for a period of time in excess of one year is counted as two or more campaigns, as the case may be.

<sup>19</sup> The fundraiser that went out of business was Univision Fundraising Corporation, formerly known as Univision Marketing Group, Inc.

<sup>20</sup> All dollar amounts have been rounded to the nearest dollar, and all percentages to the nearest tenth of a percent.

<sup>21</sup> The percentages in this and subsequent charts reflect the fact that some fundraisers selected more than one response in their notice of solicitation filed with the State (for example, more than one purpose of the campaign).

<sup>24</sup> See State v. East Coast Marketing Group, Inc., et al., No. 270-05-02 Wncv (Wash. Super. Ct., May 9, 2002, and Dec. 15, 2008) (Consent Decree and Stipulation and Second Consent Decree and Stipulation).

<sup>25</sup> In May 2008, Kevin Hague's failure to file a financial report led to forfeiture of half his $20,000 bond issued by Capitol Indemnity Corporation. In June 2009, Reese Teleservice's failure to file two financial reports resulted in forfeiture of that company's entire $20,000 bond issued by ACE Property & Casualty Insurance Company/Westchester Fire Insurance Company.

Gordon, The Impact of Professional Solicitors on Fund-raising in Charitable Organizations, 27 Nonprofit and Voluntary Sector Quarterly, no. 3, 277, 283 (Sept. 1998) (hereinafter Impact of Professional Solicitors) (in case of special events, "[t]he ticket price has an element of charity, but purchasers may well be more interested in the band playing at the concert, for example, than the particular charity the concert is supposed to support.").

<sup>28</sup> Of course, a more direct way of making this kind of information available to Vermonters would be to require paid fundraisers to disclose directly to prospective donors the percentage of any donation that they will receive. However, the United States Supreme Court has determined that such a requirement would constitute compelled speech in violation of the First Amendment to the federal Constitution. See Riley v. National Federation of the Blind of North Carolina, 487 U.S. 781 (1988). However, the Court in Riley found it permissible for a state to require paid fundraisers to disclose to potential contributors their professional status and employer's name and address, and to disclose in writing that information on the fundraiser-charity split is available from a state agency, see Riley, 487 U.S. at 799 n.11—all of which Vermont Charitable Solicitations Act does.

One survey in 2001 found that of 1,500 charity respondents, only 8% said they had contracted with a professional solicitation firm in the past year. See Center on Nonprofits and Philanthropy, Urban Institute Center on Philanthropy, Indiana Univ., Who Raises Contributions for America's Nonprofit Organizations (Brief no. 2, July 2004), www.urban.org/UploadedPDF/311034\_nonprofit\_overhead2.pdf.

<sup>30</sup> See Impact of Professional Solicitors at 289 (charities using paid fundraisers reported average of 25% of total expenses devoted to fundraising; charities not using paid fundraisers reported average of 15% for that purpose).

<sup>32</sup> Charity Navigator evaluates and rates over 5,480 charities, reviewing program expenses, administrative expenses, fundraising expenses, fundraising efficiency, primary revenue growth, program expense growth, and working capital ratio. The rating uses a 0-4 star system, with 4 stars denoting that the charity “exceeds industry standards” and “outperforms most charities” in its cause. Fundraising expenses greater than 25% of the total functional expenses of the charity result in a rating of “0” for that factor. See www.charitynavigator.org.

<sup>34</sup> The American Institute of Philanthropy (AIP) also has an online rating system for charities, but it is not free (the current cost is $3.00), and one has to send for it by mail. Consistent with the BBB standards, AIP considers it reasonable for most charities to spend $35 or less to raise $100. See www.charitywatch.org/criteria.html.

<sup>35</sup> See Impact of Professional Solicitors at 281-82 (citing a focus group study in which participants felt that an appropriate ratio would be 75% for programs and 25% for administration and fundraising, and another study of 5,000 donors in which organizations that were perceived to spend 60% or more on programs received significantly larger gifts). Similarly, in a survey of 1,683 persons age 25 and older, 70% of all respondents said the fundraiser’s share of contributions should be 10% or less. See AARP Research Group, 1998 AARP Survey on Charitable Donations: A Summary of Key Findings at 8-9 (Nov. 1998).

<sup>36</sup> A recognized accounting standard permits the costs of mailing solicitations to prospective donors to be jointly allocated between fundraising and “program” activities if certain conditions are met. Thus, for example, a charity (directly or through a paid fundraiser) that mails informational materials containing a request for contributions to parents of students, which materials explain the dangers of drug abuse, can legitimately attribute part of the cost of the mailing to its program functions if (a) the materials also encourage the parents to counsel children about the dangers of drug abuse and how to recognize it; (b) the charity conducts other activities in other media informing the public about the dangers of drug abuse and encouraging parents to counsel their children, which activities do not include requests for contributions; and (c) compensation to the charity’s management is not based on contributions raised by the informational mailing. See Statement of Position 98-2, Accounting for Costs of Activities of Not-for-Profit Organizations and State and Local Governmental Entities That Include Fundraising (American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, Mar. 11, 1998), App. E (Illus. 1).
