The thing I care most about in Vermont are the animals. Some of the things I like about Vermont's environment are all the fluffy animals like lynx, fox, bobcat, deer, rabbit, mice and beaver and I like the Connecticut River too. I also enjoy sledding and skiing on the snowy hills and ice skating on the lakes in Vermont.

To me Earth Day is just a day where you pick up trash around the town.

My concerns about Vermont's environment are that it might get too hot for the animals that live there. The impact of the changing of Vermont's environment are that it might make it so it gets hotter than it is now and there might be a big tick problem and It might get too hot for some of the animals too.

I think that we should plant  to help protect the environment.

That's all
