

Paper and Why We Should Cut Down on It

Whenever humans use things like paper, paper towels, paper napkins or things like that, we should really think about how much we are using.

Although it may seem that the Earth has so many trees, it actually needs more. Trees are used for so many things, but if we aren't considerate about how much we use, things could get bad.

Us humans rely on trees so much. We need trees to live and breath also use them for paper and such. However, if we over use or use too much, all the trees will be gone.

Below are some things you can do to help not over use paper:

- Use cloth napkins
- Use the “one or none” rule for things like paper towels
- Don't use more paper than you need!

P.S. Have fun and plant some trees!!!

Plastic and Why We Should Cut Down on It #2

Whenever us humans use things like plastic, we should think about where we put it. Although it would be best for the Earth if we used almost no plastic, that is not possible.

If we have plastic items, we can put it in the trash if that is where it should go, but if not, they go in the recycling bin. You will know if it is recyclable if it has a recyclable symbol.

No trash would be better, but instead of throwing your trash or recycling on the side of the road, you can put it in the trash if it has any food left on it you can rinse it or throw it away. Rinsing would be better.

Here are all the things that are recyclable; everything else is trash. Seltzer cans or any cans, cardboard, bottles, paper and plastic containers are all recyclable.

But that is not a reason to be upset, Therefore, there are so many plastic items we can cut down on.*

* Here are some plastic things people can cut down on:

- Plastic Straws
- Plastic cups
- Plastic Plates
- Plastic water bottles
