Vermont: This Marvelous State

Vermont is an amazing place to live. It has plenty of maple syrup, cheddar cheese, and Ben and Jerry's ice cream! Those are just a few reasons why I love Vermont so much. Besides the good food, Vermont also has gorgeous views!

Vermont is a beautiful place with its glorious mountains, pearly white snow, and pastel sunsets. It has a lot of things to do such as biking, skiing, swimming, horseback riding, running, ice skating, and much more! Although Vermont does not have many big cities, there are plenty of opportunities for fun and entertainment. There is no place with all the variety of things to do like Vermont!

Vermont has foliage like a map of colors sewn together, their colors exploding everywhere. I like going on trails with a horse named Barry. If you look up in the fall it looks like a canopy of red, orange, and yellow. Then when those majestic leaves fall, you can jump in their piles and have a blast.

I like how Vermont is a safe place with clean air and room to breathe. There are no giant billboards that make you feel like a tiny bug or skyscrapers that are high up in the sky blocking the sun. I think it is the prettiest place in the world.

I think that's why Earth Day is so important for our special state. We have a responsibility to keep our state so beautiful and clean. Everything you do can make a difference, no matter how small. From picking up trash off the side of the road, to using fewer plastic containers and getting reusable water bottles, to walking or biking to close places, and even planting your own gardens.

Vermont is wonderful from the bottom to the top. I am thankful for all the people who help keep it that way. Happy Earth Day!
