

VERMONT IS HOME

BY GABBY

Mountains, tall trees, and clear teal lakes. That's what I think about Vermont, My home. I wanna keep it this way and I know I can if I do some small things to help the environment.

I love swimming in the summer, especially when I go to the rope swing and the bridge by Moore Reservoir. One time I saw a snapping turtle there, and I hope to see more but we won't if we trash the river they live in.

The tree's take carbon dioxide to make it into oxygen. We all need oxygen to live and even the animals. We need to stop cutting down trees in order to keep on making oxygen. Or we need to plant more trees and plants. We need trees, so if you cut them down you should plant more. You can plant apple trees, so you get food.

If we want to keep our environment clean, we should keep picking up trash and stop littering. Some other things we can do is compost food scraps, recycle, turn off lights when we are not using them and not cut down so many trees. On time I took a small plant from outside and planted it in a cup and it grew in my window sill. I replanted it an it is still growing.

I dont get why everybody is always on a device. I know youtube may be fun to watch, but go outside and be a kid. You can run, play tag, ride bikes, and many other fun things that don't need power.

Spring is finally here. The cold winds are leaving and the warm bright sun comes back. The water runs down the Mountains, And the trees get green and the cold snow melts down the Mountains. We can run in the sun and after we run it's always nice to jump in the warm clear water. And that's why I want to keep our environment clean, especially in my state of Vermont.
