

Why I Love Vermont

The reason I love Vermont is not just because of the views but the people and all the fun I have. Here I feel like I actually belong but when I went to go see my family there in Texas I felt like I was a stranger there. I did not belong. But here in Vermont I feel like I was meant to be here.

The first reason is the people here are so kind. One day I met a wonderful woman. When I was first born she was the first person to hold me after my dad and mom. It was my grandmother. She was so kind, she raised me. She has to be a lady. My grandma helped me learn to do things like cook. I have this friend. I will not say her name, but she is a loving person. She has been there for me this year. When I cry she is there for me. She is a great friend.

The second reason is that I love all the seasons because of all the fun stuff I get to do in the summer like BBQs, swimming with friends and playing games outside. Fall because of outdoor games, my birthday, hunting season, and the woods we get to make forts. Winter because of skiing outside sledding, and snowmobiling, and all the hot chocolate I get to drink. Because of mud season, I can go four wheeling and diving in the mud on trails with my family.

The third reason is the mountains. The mountains here are beautiful but what I love most about them is how they keep us safe from all things like tornadoes. We get very little tornadoes but they don't last very long here, but most of all I love how we can go down them. Not all states have mountains like us so cherish them like my family.

Why I love Vermont is because of the way it keeps us safe and most of the people are so kind, well the ones I know at least. Mountains keep us safe like we are her children. The seasons are so beautiful.
